

Owen & Moore,

Druggists and Booksellers

Clarksville, Tenn.

Constantly on hand a full supply of School Books, Pure Drugs, Miscellaneous Books, Patent Medicines, Sunday School Books, Dye-Stuffs, Paints, Writing Paper, Oils, Varnishes, Teas, Envelopes, Pens, Spices, Perfumery, Pencils, Slates, Inks, Toilet Articles, Copy Books, Cigars, Blank Books, and Tobacco, and everything pertaining to Office Pure Wines and Liquors for Medical Purposes.

Our Entire Stock is Fresh.

CALL AND EXAMINE.

L. GAUCHAT,

JEWELER,

57 FRANKLIN STREET,

Special attention to repairing Watches, Clocks, Jewelry and Fancy Goods. All work

S. B. STEWART,

Drugs and Medicines,

Paints, Oils, Toilet Articles,

Stationery, School Books, Etc.

(Stand formerly occupied by McCauley & Co.)

I cordially invite my friends and former patrons to come and examine stock and prices.

August 10, 1880-11

J. F. WARFIELD,

PROPRIETOR OF

The Peoples Drug Store!

(OPPOSITE FOX & SMITH'S)

Franklin Street, - Clarksville, Tennessee,

Pure Drugs, Stationery, Fancy & Toilet Articles, Paints, Oils, Varnishes, Patent Medicines, School Supplies, etc. will be on hand at all hours, both day and night, and I will fill prescriptions with accuracy and skill. Respectfully, J. F. WARFIELD, January 1, 1880-81

Fire Insurance!

As good as can be had. Protect your property without delay by insuring in the following old reliable companies:

Ins. Co. of North America of Phila. 86 years old. Assets $6,591,740.18

Franklin Fire Ins. Co. of Phila. 63 years old. Assets $3,262,627.46

Phoenix of Hartford, Ct. 35 years old. Assets $2,733,341.27

M. C. PITMAN, AG'T.

March 13, 1880.

SIXTY-FOUR YEARS

OF

Continuous Success.

CLARKSVILLE

Weekly Chronicle.

ESTABLISHED 1814.

One of the Oldest Newspapers in the Southern States. Continued under its present name since 1833.

EXTENSIVE IMPROVEMENTS

MADE TO MEET AN

Immense Patronage!

A Paper for the Farmer, Mechanic, Business Man, and Family Circle. A Weekly Compendium of Local, County, State and Foreign News. Subscribe for it.

ONLY $2.00 PER ANNUM.

SPRING, 1880!

Ladies' fine and stylish shoes and slippers at V. L. Williams.

Misses', children's and infants' plain and fancy shoes, strap shoes and slippers at V. L. Williams.

Ladies' plain Newport ties and slippers for home wear, from 25 cts. per pair up, at V. L. Williams.

Ladies' button and side-lace boots in fancy and plain styles, at V. L. Williams.

Gentlemen's fine dress boots and shoes, in plain and box toes, at V. L. Williams.

Gentlemen's kid, goat and calf low cut shoes, in all styles, at V. L. Williams.

Gentlemen's latest styles stiff and soft hats at V. L. Williams.

Remember the place, No. 25, Franklin Street. We will take pleasure in showing our goods and giving you our prices.

V. L. Williams.

Hand-made brogans at V. L. Williams.

Ladies' hand pegged calf shoes at V. L. Williams.

All styles of ladies', misses' and children's shoes for heavy wear, at V. L. Williams.

Paragon Hams, Dried Beef, BREAKFAST BACON, Virginia Roe Herring, Deviled Ham, Deviled Tongue, Deviled Turkey, Deviled Chicken,

COOKED CORNED BEEF, COLD LUNCH MEATS, Canned Fish, &c.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER, Steel & Price's Baking Powder, Charm Baking Powder, Honest Baking Powder,

Burnett's Flavoring Extracts, CROSSE & BLACKWELL'S ENGLISH PICKLES,

Domestic Pickles of all Kinds, Pure Spices, Pure Apple Vinegar,

Eagle Condensed Milk, LEMONS.

COFFEES! Old Government Padang Java, Golden Rio, Green Rio.

We buy the very finest Coffee to be had, and do our own roasting and grinding in the store.

TEAS! Gunpowder, Imperial, Oolong, As to quality, be your own judge. Come and try a sample.

KINCANNON, WOOD & CO.

Franklin Street, - Clarksville, Tenn.

Manufacturers of and Dealers in

HARDWARE, Stoves,

CUTLERY, Tin and Sheet-Ironware,

Mechanics' House-Furnishing Goods,

TOOLS, China, Glass and Queensware.

WAGON We are fully prepared to furnish all kinds of goods in our line as cheap as the cheapest, consisting of French, China, White Granite and C. C. Ware in every variety.

COOK STOVES, HEATING STOVES, PLAIN AND ENAMELED GRATES, WALLACE PATENT GRATE, IRON MANTELS, ETC., SOLID SILVER WARE, PLATED WARE, BOHEMIAN GLASS, CROCKERY, ETC.

Also Chimney Tops, Patent Pipes, Drain Tile and Fire Brick. We are prepared to do Tin and Slate Roofing, Galvanized Iron Work, Gutters, etc., at bottom prices. We have many useful articles in the House-Furnishing line. Please call and see for yourselves.

Kincannon, Wood & Co.

N. B.—If you want to go to house-keeping we can fix you.

January 11, 1879-81

GRANGE

Warehouse Assoc'n,

Tobacco and General

Commission Merchants,

Clarksville, Tennessee.

T. HERNDON, Superintendent.

JAS. H. SMITH, Inspector.

In this stage of the proceedings, when the whole country had abandoned the hope of a settlement of the disagreement between the houses, and the angry contest was likely to be adjourned for further and protracted agitation before a people already inflamed with sectional animosities, Mr. English took the responsibility of moving to concur in the proposition of the senate for a committee of free conference.

The excitement upon the occasion had scarcely been equalled in the house of representatives. Upon adopting this motion the vote was a tie (108 to 108); but the speaker voted in the affirmative. Thirty million of excited people are not easily quelled, and a question which could agitate a whole nation was not likely to be removed without a struggle and some sacrifice of opinion.

These things will all be considered by those who are disposed to judge wisely. Wise patriotic men could well approve of a measure, originating under such circumstances, which would have been objected to as an error of procedure, if it had not been an original proposal, depending alone upon my approval to shape into a law, without sacrificing its substance have changed in some respect some of its provisions. It was no time, however, to cavil about non-essential points, or unimportant words; no time to manifest a captious or dogmatical disposition. In its behalf, and they now have the proud satisfaction of knowing that it has realized every claim for it. It was enacted by the people, and it was the very best that could be secured at the time and under the circumstances which then existed.

In that spirit it was agreed to in committee; in that spirit enacted into a law. It was, in effect, referred to the people, and was supported in the hope of reconciliation and peace. If those who gave it their support erred, it was a yielding too much in the praiseworthy effort of removing a dangerous question from the national councils and restoring harmony to a highly excited people.

Under this law the question of admission under the Lecompton constitution was, in effect, referred back to the people of Kansas, and they voted against it, just as Mr. English and almost everyone else expected they would do. Even so bitter a partisan as Mr. Greeley then was, admitted, in his history, that the vote was a crushing one. It was submitted by the English bill, in effect, to reject the Lecompton constitution.

The result was accomplished which Mr. English had contended for from the beginning, and there is no inconsistency in his record upon this subject. He was a member, and voted for her admission.

Franklin Bank,

FRANKLIN STREET, CLARKSVILLE, TENN.

BUYS AND SELLS EXCHANGE NEW YORK, MEMPHIS, NEW ORLEANS, CHICAGO, LOUISVILLE, NASHVILLE, AND ALL ACCESSIBLE PLACES.

Prompt Attention to Collections. W. S. POINDEXTER, Cashier, Jan 1 1881

MR. ENGLISH IN CONGRESS. THIRD ELECTION TO CONGRESS.

At the end of Mr. English's second term he avowed his intention of not being a candidate for congress again, and requested his constituents to select some other person. The convention which met to nominate a successor, however, after balloting 42 times without making a choice finally determined, unanimously, to insist upon Mr. English taking the field for a third time, which he reluctantly consented to do, and was elected by a large majority.

Mr. Speaker appointed him chairman of the committee on post-offices and post-roads—an important position in the house, which are charged with ability.

In the meantime the agitation of the slavery question continued, and the Kansas controversy assumed a new and more dangerous aspect than ever. Application was made to admit Kansas as a state, under what was known as the Lecompton constitution, which was a pro-slavery measure, and was favored by the south, and also by President Buchanan's administration, but was opposed by Mr. English and his constituents. It was not a submission as direct as Mr. English himself had explained, but was the best he could get under the complications then existing and was a substantial vindication of his "English bill."

The Lecompton constitution was, in effect, referred to the people of Kansas, and they voted against it, just as Mr. English and almost everyone else expected they would do. Even so bitter a partisan as Mr. Greeley then was, admitted, in his history, that the vote was a crushing one. It was submitted by the English bill, in effect, to reject the Lecompton constitution.

The result was accomplished which Mr. English had contended for from the beginning, and there is no inconsistency in his record upon this subject. He was a member, and voted for her admission.

The popular current in the north was against the "Lecompton" constitution, and the "English bill" entered into the ensuing political campaign, and came in for the usual amount of misrepresentation and abuse.

Mr. English had again been brought forward for re-election, and his opponents made extraordinary efforts to defeat him, and there was at one time some doubt whether a portion of his political friends who thought he ought to have voted for the admission of Kansas under the Lecompton constitution, would not have finally deserted, resulting, probably, in his defeat. It was written by the president himself, in which he spoke of the highest terms of Mr. English.

FOURTH ELECTION TO CONGRESS. The popular current in the north was against the "Lecompton" constitution, and the "English bill" entered into the ensuing political campaign, and came in for the usual amount of misrepresentation and abuse.

Mr. English had again been brought forward for re-election, and his opponents made extraordinary efforts to defeat him, and there was at one time some doubt whether a portion of his political friends who thought he ought to have voted for the admission of Kansas under the Lecompton constitution, would not have finally deserted, resulting, probably, in his defeat. It was written by the president himself, in which he spoke of the highest terms of Mr. English.

THE SERENADE AND REJOICINGS. On the night after the passage of the "English bill" there was a grand meeting in Washington city which serenaded the president and the speaker of the house, which the Union newspaper said:

"It was a time of congratulation among all true-hearted Union men. The president and the speaker of the house were serenaded by a large number of citizens, and the Union newspaper said:

"I consider the present occasion the most fortunate of your life. It will be your fate to end the dangerous agitation, to confer lasting benefits on your country, and to render your character historical. I shall remain always your friend."

On the night after the passage of the "English bill" there was a grand meeting in Washington city which serenaded the president and the speaker of the house, which the Union newspaper said:

"It was a time of congratulation among all true-hearted Union men. The president and the speaker of the house were serenaded by a large number of citizens, and the Union newspaper said:

"I consider the present occasion the most fortunate of your life. It will be your fate to end the dangerous agitation, to confer lasting benefits on your country, and to render your character historical. I shall remain always your friend."

On the night after the passage of the "English bill" there was a grand meeting in Washington city which serenaded the president and the speaker of the house, which the Union newspaper said:

"It was a time of congratulation among all true-hearted Union men. The president and the speaker of the house were serenaded by a large number of citizens, and the Union newspaper said:

"I consider the present occasion the most fortunate of your life. It will be your fate to end the dangerous agitation, to confer lasting benefits on your country, and to render your character historical. I shall remain always your friend."

On the night after the passage of the "English bill" there was a grand meeting in Washington city which serenaded the president and the speaker of the house, which the Union newspaper said:

"It was a time of congratulation among all true-hearted Union men. The president and the speaker of the house were serenaded by a large number of citizens, and the Union newspaper said:

"I consider the present occasion the most fortunate of your life. It will be your fate to end the dangerous agitation, to confer lasting benefits on your country, and to render your character historical. I shall remain always your friend."

On the night after the passage of the "English bill" there was a grand meeting in Washington city which serenaded the president and the speaker of the house, which the Union newspaper said:

"It was a time of congratulation among all true-hearted Union men. The president and the speaker of the house were serenaded by a large number of citizens, and the Union newspaper said:

"I consider the present occasion the most fortunate of your life. It will be your fate to end the dangerous agitation, to confer lasting benefits on your country, and to render your character historical. I shall remain always your friend."

On the night after the passage of the "English bill" there was a grand meeting in Washington city which serenaded the president and the speaker of the house, which the Union newspaper said:

"It was a time of congratulation among all true-hearted Union men. The president and the speaker of the house were serenaded by a large number of citizens, and the Union newspaper said:

"I consider the present occasion the most fortunate of your life. It will be your fate to end the dangerous agitation, to confer lasting benefits on your country, and to render your character historical. I shall remain always your friend."

On the night after the passage of the "English bill" there was a grand meeting in Washington city which serenaded the president and the speaker of the house, which the Union newspaper said:

"It was a time of congratulation among all true-hearted Union men. The president and the speaker of the house were serenaded by a large number of citizens, and the Union newspaper said:

"I consider the present occasion the most fortunate of your life. It will be your fate to end the dangerous agitation, to confer lasting benefits on your country, and to render your character historical. I shall remain always your friend."

On the night after the passage of the "English bill" there was a grand meeting in Washington city which serenaded the president and the speaker of the house, which the Union newspaper said:

"It was a time of congratulation among all true-hearted Union men. The president and the speaker of the house were serenaded by a large number of citizens, and the Union newspaper said:

"I consider the present occasion the most fortunate of your life. It will be your fate to end the dangerous agitation, to confer lasting benefits on your country, and to render your character historical. I shall remain always your friend."

On the night after the passage of the "English bill" there was a grand meeting in Washington city which serenaded the president and the speaker of the house, which the Union newspaper said:

"It was a time of congratulation among all true-hearted Union men. The president and the speaker of the house were serenaded by a large number of citizens, and the Union newspaper said:

"I consider the present occasion the most fortunate of your life. It will be your fate to end the dangerous agitation, to confer lasting benefits on your country, and to render your character historical. I shall remain always your friend."

On the night after the passage of the "English bill" there was a grand meeting in Washington city which serenaded the president and the speaker of the house, which the Union newspaper said:

"It was a time of congratulation among all true-hearted Union men. The president and the speaker of the house were serenaded by a large number of citizens, and the Union newspaper said:

SECRETS OF THE PRINTING OFFICE.

One Class of Men Who Were Never Known to Retray Confidence.

London Printer and Stationer.

Printers have never, we think, received due appreciation for the honorable confidence which they have practised in regard to the secrets with which they have been entrusted. Such a case as this often happens. An article in a newspaper or magazine makes what is called a "sensation." It is entirely anonymous, and public curiosity is excited to the utmost, to discover the name of its author. The writer may be a cabinet minister, a high official, a courtier, or any of the thousand and one persons who, if he were suspected of writing for the press, would at once lose his position, his office, perhaps his reputation. On the other hand, the writer may be a struggling author, a hard-working journalist, or a mere literary amateur. In any case his secret is preserved, his anonymity is safe as long as it is confined to the printers.

Thirty years ago there was a great stir made about a book entitled "Ecco Homo." It was a clever work and had an unexampled success. The author's name was not on the title page, but the question on everybody's lips, "Some scores of persons were named, and they repudiated their participation in it. All sorts of conjectures were hazarded, and no doubt large sums would have been paid by several conductors of journals for the author's information as to the name of the author. Yet that name was known to a master printer, his overseer, and at least some of the compositors, but it was never revealed. When the name was published, it was not through the instrumentality of the printers, but entirely independent of them. They had faithfully kept their secret.

Going back a few years, the authorship of the "Mystery Novel" might be referred to as a remarkable incident of literary history. Sir Walter Scott's authorship, although never admitted, was almost expected by everyone. Even so bitter a partisan as Mr. Greeley then was, admitted, in his history, that the vote was a crushing one. It was submitted by the English bill, in effect, to reject the Lecompton constitution.

The result was accomplished which Mr. English had contended for from the beginning, and there is no inconsistency in his record upon this subject. He was a member, and voted for her admission.

The popular current in the north was against the "Lecompton" constitution, and the "English bill" entered into the ensuing political campaign, and came in for the usual amount of misrepresentation and abuse.

Mr. English had again been brought forward for re-election, and his opponents made extraordinary efforts to defeat him, and there was at one time some doubt whether a portion of his political friends who thought he ought to have voted for the admission of Kansas under the Lecompton constitution, would not have finally deserted, resulting, probably, in his defeat. It was written by the president himself, in which he spoke of the highest terms of Mr. English.

FOURTH ELECTION TO CONGRESS. The popular current in the north was against the "Lecompton" constitution, and the "English bill" entered into the ensuing political campaign, and came in for the usual amount of misrepresentation and abuse.

Mr. English had again been brought forward for re-election, and his opponents made extraordinary efforts to defeat him, and there was at one time some doubt whether a portion of his political friends who thought he ought to have voted for the admission of Kansas under the Lecompton constitution, would not have finally deserted, resulting, probably, in his defeat. It was written by the president himself, in which he spoke of the highest terms of Mr. English.

THE SERENADE AND REJOICINGS. On the night after the passage of the "English bill" there was a grand meeting in Washington city which serenaded the president and the speaker of the house, which the Union newspaper said:

"It was a time of congratulation among all true-hearted Union men. The president and the speaker of the house were serenaded by a large number of citizens, and the Union newspaper said:

"I consider the present occasion the most fortunate of your life. It will be your fate to end the dangerous agitation, to confer lasting benefits on your country, and to render your character historical. I shall remain always your friend."

On the night after the passage of the "English bill" there was a grand meeting in Washington city which serenaded the president and the speaker of the house, which the Union newspaper said:

"It was a time of congratulation among all true-hearted Union men. The president and the speaker of the house were serenaded by a large number of citizens, and the Union newspaper said:

"I consider the present occasion the most fortunate of your life. It will be your fate to end the dangerous agitation, to confer lasting benefits on your country, and to render your character historical. I shall remain always your friend."

On the night after the passage of the "English bill" there was a grand meeting in Washington city which serenaded the president and the speaker of the house, which the Union newspaper said:

"It was a time of congratulation among all true-hearted Union men. The president and the speaker of the house were serenaded by a large number of citizens, and the Union newspaper said:

"I consider the present occasion the most fortunate of your life. It will be your fate to end the dangerous agitation, to confer lasting benefits on your country, and to render your character historical. I shall remain always your friend."

On the night after the passage of the "English bill" there was a grand meeting in Washington city which serenaded the president and the speaker of the house, which the Union newspaper said:

"It was a time of congratulation among all true-hearted Union men. The president and the speaker of the house were serenaded by a large number of citizens, and the Union newspaper said:

"I consider the present occasion the most fortunate of your life. It will be your fate to end the dangerous agitation, to confer lasting benefits on your country, and to render your character historical. I shall remain always your friend."

On the night after the passage of the "English bill" there was a grand meeting in Washington city which serenaded the president and the speaker of the house, which the Union newspaper said:

"It was a time of congratulation among all true-hearted Union men. The president and the speaker of the house were serenaded by a large number of citizens, and the Union newspaper said:

"I consider the present occasion the most fortunate of your life. It will be your fate to end the dangerous agitation, to confer lasting benefits on your country, and to render your character historical. I shall remain always your friend."

On the night after the passage of the "English bill" there was a grand meeting in Washington city which serenaded the president and the speaker of the house, which the Union newspaper said:

"It was a time of congratulation among all true-hearted Union men. The president and the speaker of the house were serenaded by a large number of citizens, and the Union newspaper said:

"I consider the present occasion the most fortunate of your life. It will be your fate to end the dangerous agitation, to confer lasting benefits on your country, and to render your character historical. I shall remain always your friend."

On the night after the passage of the "English bill" there was a grand meeting in Washington city which serenaded the president and the speaker of the house, which the Union newspaper said:

"It was a time of congratulation among all true-hearted Union men. The president and the speaker of the house were serenaded by a large number of citizens, and the Union newspaper said:

"I consider the present occasion the most fortunate of your life. It will be your fate to end the dangerous agitation, to confer lasting benefits on your country, and to render your character historical. I shall remain always your friend."

On the night after the passage of the "English bill" there was a grand meeting in Washington city which serenaded the president and the speaker of the house, which the Union newspaper said:

"It was a time of congratulation among all true-hearted Union men. The president and the speaker of the house were serenaded by a large number of citizens, and the Union newspaper said:

"I consider the present occasion the most fortunate of your life. It will be your fate to end the dangerous agitation, to confer lasting benefits on your country, and to render your character historical. I shall remain always your friend."

On the night after the passage of the "English bill" there was a grand meeting in Washington city which serenaded the president and the speaker of the house, which the Union newspaper said:

"It was a time of congratulation among all true-hearted Union men. The president and the speaker of the house were serenaded by a large number of citizens, and the Union newspaper said:

"I consider the present occasion the most fortunate of your life. It will be your fate to end the dangerous agitation, to confer lasting benefits on your country, and to render your character historical. I shall remain always your friend."

On the night after the passage of the "English bill" there was a grand meeting in Washington city which serenaded the president and the speaker of the house, which the Union newspaper said:

"It was a time of congratulation among all true-hearted Union men. The president and the speaker of the house were serenaded by a large number of citizens, and the Union newspaper said:

"I consider the present occasion the most fortunate of your life. It will be your fate to end the dangerous agitation, to confer lasting benefits on your country, and to render your character historical. I shall remain always your friend."

On the night after the passage of the "English bill" there was a grand meeting in Washington city which serenaded the president and the speaker of the house, which the Union newspaper said:

"It was a time of congratulation among all true-hearted Union men. The president and the speaker of the house were serenaded by a large number of citizens, and the Union newspaper said:

SECRETS OF THE PRINTING OFFICE.

One Class of Men Who Were Never Known to Retray Confidence.

London Printer and Stationer.

Printers have never, we think, received due appreciation for the honorable confidence which they have practised in regard to the secrets with which they have been entrusted. Such a case as this often happens. An article in a newspaper or magazine makes what is called a "sensation." It is entirely anonymous, and public curiosity is excited to the utmost, to discover the name of its author. The writer may be a cabinet minister, a high official, a courtier, or any of the thousand and one persons who, if he were suspected of writing for the press, would at once lose his position, his office, perhaps his reputation. On the other hand, the writer may be a struggling author, a hard-working journalist, or a mere literary amateur. In any case his secret is preserved, his anonymity is safe as long as it is confined to the printers.

Thirty years ago there was a great stir made about a book entitled "Ecco Homo." It was a clever work and had an unexampled success. The author's name was not on the title page, but the question on everybody's lips, "Some scores of persons were named, and they repudiated their participation in it. All sorts of conjectures were hazarded, and no doubt large sums would have been paid by several conductors of journals for the author's information as to the name of the author. Yet that name was known to a master printer, his overseer, and at least some of the compositors, but it was never revealed. When the name was published, it was not through the instrumentality of the printers, but entirely independent of them. They had faithfully kept their secret.

Going back a few years, the authorship of the "Mystery Novel" might be referred to as a remarkable incident of literary history. Sir Walter Scott's authorship, although never admitted, was almost expected by everyone. Even so bitter a partisan as Mr. Greeley then was, admitted, in his history, that the vote was a crushing one. It was submitted by the English bill, in effect, to reject the Lecompton constitution.

The result was accomplished which Mr. English had contended for from the beginning, and there is no inconsistency in his record upon this subject. He was a member, and voted for her admission.

The popular current in the north was against the "Lecompton" constitution, and the "English bill" entered into the ensuing political campaign, and came in for the usual amount of misrepresentation and abuse.

Mr. English had again been brought forward for re-election, and his opponents made extraordinary efforts to defeat him, and there was at one time some doubt whether a portion of his political friends who thought he ought to have voted for the admission of Kansas under the Lecompton constitution, would not have finally deserted, resulting, probably, in his defeat. It was written by the president himself, in which he spoke of the highest terms of Mr. English.

FOURTH ELECTION TO CONGRESS. The popular current in the north was against the "Lecompton" constitution, and the "English bill" entered into the ensuing political campaign, and came in for the usual amount of misrepresentation and abuse.

Mr. English had again been brought forward for re-election, and his opponents made extraordinary efforts to defeat him, and there was at one time some doubt whether a portion of his political friends who thought he ought to have voted for the admission of Kansas under the Lecompton constitution, would not have finally deserted, resulting, probably, in his defeat. It was written by the president himself, in which he spoke of the highest terms of Mr. English.

THE SERENADE AND REJOICINGS. On the night after the passage of the "English bill" there was a grand meeting in Washington city which serenaded the president and the speaker of the house, which the Union newspaper said:

"It was a time of congratulation among all true-hearted Union men. The president and the speaker of the house were serenaded by a large number of citizens, and the Union newspaper said:

"I consider the present occasion the most fortunate of your life. It will be your fate to end the dangerous agitation, to confer lasting benefits on your country, and to render your character historical. I shall remain always your friend."</